September Partnerships

Coming Together is the Beginning!

Keeping Together is Progress!

Working Together is Success! – Henry Ford

I'm so excited to be partnering with so many wonderful people and groups! We are all working together to help Adams County be a destination!

First off, we have Chad Elliott's Wilderman's Treetop Paintings on display throughout the building. The eight whimsical paintings have so many details, I see something new every time I walk pass them. They remind me of when I read Shel Silverstein to my children, quirky, funny, and thought provoking. They are on display until September 26. Free.

Second, we are partnering with Corning Center for Fine Arts and the Iowa Historical Society with a World War I veteran's display in the lobby. The panels honor all those who died in battle with their pictures. These are on display through November. Free. Be watching for information on the Veteran's program.

Third, Johnny Carson Birthplace Society and the opera house are working on our annual Tonight Show. Both groups are now searching for the 10 acts that will delight the audience. The organizations divide the work and proceeds are split between the two non-profit organizations.

To me partnership means collaborating, problem solving, sharing and helping one another. All that teamwork takes diversity, creativity, leadership, vision, and goals! We all have strengths and weaknesses. Thanks for teaming up with us! We appreciate your attendance, encouragement and financial support!

See you soon,

De
